

Testing my website using DevTools

To make sure that website functions, I must first debug html and css using the devtools in the Google Browser. Below is the screenshot to show that there were no bugs and also to show that the website is functioning:

As you can see, this screenshot shows the content of my website including the display of the programming languages of html and css. There are no errors and no bugs.